

RING IN SPRING WITH ARTWEEK BOSTON

Spring is here (or well on the way), and that means it's time for ArtWeek Boston. This year's celebration of local arts and artists gets under way on Apr. 29 and runs through May 8. It includes more than 100 events, many of them free, in the city of Boston and beyond. The event is presented by Highland Street Foundation and produced by Citi Performing Arts Center. Whether your interests are underground comic books, theatre arts, photography, fashion, crafts or any of the many other creative events and opportunities that surround us, you'll find something to match your interests. There's even a chance to sample an "Art of Food" menu at certain restaurants.

In the neighborhood, student bands from the New England Conservatory will celebrate International Jazz Day on April 30. Or you can tour public art at Northeastern University on May 4. Diablo Glass School (featured on page 6 of this issue) hosts an event on April 30. Another nearby event is "Studio Without Walls," featuring outdoor sculptures along the Riverway (see page 8). For a full list of ArtWeek events and their locations, visit www.artweekboston.org/events.

