This will be a one of a kind artistic experience powered by creativity.

Around the World With 14 Trunks (and 8.5 Kids)

Lead Host(s): Maria Judge Author

Partner Host(s), if applicable:

Price: FREE

Location: West Medford Community Center, 111 Arlington Street, Medford

Region: Greater Boston

Genre: Literary Arts/Humanities/Ideas, Multimedia/Interdisciplinary

Date(s): Sunday, April 28 02:00 PM to 03:00 PM

Event URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/172>

During the 15 years the Judge family lived in Ireland, Germany and Chile, the number of children and trunks increased with each trip. Maria Judge tells stories of these travels in a multilingual presentation with music, video and maps, and invites the audience to share stories of their childhoods and family rituals, including how names were chosen, mealtime routines, travels, music listened to or performed, schools, neighborhoods, and how your family could embarrass you. And while not every family accumulates 14 trunks and 9 children when they travel, the stories we share reveal how much we all have in common. This event is hosted as part of West Medford Open Studios.

Art and Hats!

Lead Host(s): Goorin Bros. Hat Shop

Partner Host(s), if applicable: Newbury Street League

Audubon's Royal Octavo: Democratizing Natural HistoryLead Host(s): Mary M. B. Wakefield Charitable TrustPartner Host(s), if applicable:*Price: $20.00Location: Cunningham Park Hall, 75 Edgehill Road, MiltonRegion: Greater BostonGenre: History, Visual ArtDate(s): Wednesday, May 01 07:00 PM to 08:30 PMEvent URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/397>

Drawing from the Wakefield Estate's own octavo edition of Audubon's work, Audubon researcher Jess Clay will discuss the creation and distribution of John James Audubon's Birds of America, and its subsequent impact on the United States and 19th-century natural history. The lecture complements and builds upon the exhibition of the collection, a set of hand-colored lithographs from the 1840s, which will be held at the Wakefield Estate, 1465 Brush Hill Road in Milton, May 2-4, 11am-3pm daily. By understanding Audubon's life and artistic process alongside the personal underpinnings and political implications of the octavo edition, a new conception of the artist and his world emerges – one in which the man comes of age alongside his nation, and sets in motion a host of historical events and movements to come.

Bach and HarbisonLead Host(s): Emmanuel MusicPartner Host(s), if applicable: Newbury Street LeaguePrice: $30.00Location: Emmanuel Church in the City of Boston, 15 Newbury Street, BostonRegion: Greater BostonGenre: Literary Arts/Humanities/Ideas, MusicDate(s): Saturday, April 27 06:45 PM to 10:00 PMEvent URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/205>

Changing Course takes an innovative approach to recycling by using plastic water bottles collected from the region's beaches and waterfront to create an artistic representation of marine life. When strung together, the individual sculptures create a powerful school of fish, swimming upstream against the tide of plastics polluting our oceans. The idea is to inspire a "change of course" in how we think about single use plastics and to encourage the public to become more proactive with limiting their use of these plastics and recycling them when they are used. Installations like this aim to raise awareness of how much plastic waste we generate every day and how quickly it can accumulate in our oceans. If you can, please bring FOUND plastic water bottles to paint.

From its earliest beginnings 150 years ago, art has been central to the Back Bay's identity as a fashionable district, and remains an integral part of its essence today. This is nowhere more apparent than on Newbury Street, whose galleries are among the most venerable in New England. But art abounds well beyond these establishments: it spills out onto the very sidewalks, creating a composition rich in color, texture and line that would be worthy of any dealer's or collector's wall, though none could contain it! On this tour we'll explore how an appreciation for art and architecture guided the historic development of Newbury Street and visit some of the major sites associated with this aesthetic legacy. At the same time, we'll review how the street's buildings and places continue to fuel Boston's artistic and cultural life.

Each and every season since its inception in 1979, the Boston Philharmonic brings a new and unique energy to historically essential orchestral music from the world's most influential composers. For many classical musicians, inspiration often comes from realizing and preserving the composer's imagination.

This ArtWeek event will explore different ways of thinking about the innovative applications of classical music using improvisation, and balancing tradition with creative freedom. It will feature interpretations of this season's repertoire by accomplished keyboardist Steven Long and BPO Education Manager Derek Beckvold. After the concert, have the opportunity to talk with the Steven and Derek about the performance. For younger audience members there will be instruments for them to explore. Please join us in celebrating our 40th anniversary of inspired music-making without boundaries.

Genre: Crafts/Maker, Culinary, History

Date(s): Saturday, April 27 04:00 PM to 06:00 PM

Event URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/385>

The cocktail (as we know it today) was invented in 1806 when a news publication based out of Hudson, New York described it as "a stimulating liquor composed of any kind of sugar, water, and bitters - vulgarly called a bittered sling" - from there, the cocktail flourished. Cocktails became an art-form, as increasingly talented bartenders took up shop across the globe and created increasingly nuanced, complex, and appetizing drinks. Then came prohibition, and ushered in a dark age of mixed-drinks. Recipes were forgotten, changed, or distorted by the untrained in the underground 'speakeasy' as America's most talented bartenders took up other work, or fled the country. Only recently have we begun to rediscover the old classics – now, craft cocktails are back in vogue. Traditions are being revived as new bartenders reinterpret the classics and create new, and timeless drinks.

Join us at Bauer Wine and Spirits as we demonstrate and serve some of the old classics – the Old Fashioned, The Manhattan and more! We'll show you just how artful (and delicious) cocktails can be. This event is presented in partnership with the Newbury Street League.

Event URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/689>

How well and how often do we use our imagination? Are our visions of the future world what as dynamic and fabulous as they could be? The everyday injustices keep us busy, with our heads down, constantly putting out fires and with little time left to work on making our visions a reality. We can build the new world, but first, we have to cultivate the audacity to imagine. Come learn about The Estuary Projects and help us think about building alternative atmospheres in our communities.

Event URL: <https://calendar.artweekma.org/Detail/215>

New England's first-ever annual jug band festival will highlight traditions from the 1920's and 30's, and the modern evolution of this good-time music. Our festival will begin with several free, hands-on workshops: get up close and personal with a variety of home-made instruments at our "jug band petting zoo;" learn to blow a bass line on a jug or keep time on spoons or washboard; find out how jug band music influenced today's rock, rap and country music. The festival will conclude with a rollicking concert featuring five of the area's best jug bands. Food & drink available for purchase. This event was awarded a 2019 Music Drives Us grant.

As we have seen from the portraits of suffragists that will appear on the new ten-dollar bill to the white clothing worn by many in the 2017 Woman's March, the visual culture of the suffragist movement still makes news today. Beginning with a reception in the exhibition "Can She Do It? The Fight For and Against a Woman's Right to Vote" the guest curator, Allison Lange, will speak about the ways that woman's rights activists and their opponents used images to define gender and power during the woman suffrage movement. Lange researches visual culture and politics, especially in relation to social movements.
