ARTWEEK SPARK SESSION DATES FOR SPRING 2020 FESTIVAL ANNOUNCED ACROSS THE CAPE

Six Information sessions: Cotuit, Yarmouth, Orleans, Harwich, Wellfleet, and Provincetown!

Boston, MA (October 15, 2019) – ArtWeek, which is presented by Highland Street Foundation and produced by the Boch Center, announced that the award-winning festival celebrating arts and culture across the Commonwealth will be held next year from May 1- 10, 2020. The 10-day, innovative festival features creative experiences that are hands-on, interactive, or offer behind-the-scenes access to arts, culture, and the creative process. Last spring, nearly 600 events took place in 134 communities across Massachusetts and an astounding 70 percent of them were free to attend. During ArtWeek 2019, there were over 100 events spanning the Cape during ArtWeek.

This year, several Cape towns will be hosting ArtWeek Spark sessions. These are 30-45 minute planning meetings that are open to the public for general information, inspiration, and brainstorming since it is free to get have events listed or to participate in a special program. Creative businesses, artists, nonprofits, associations, and individuals are encouraged to attend as well as lodging and restaurants who want to learn about #Destination ArtWeek. The schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, November 12

8:30 am Cahoon Museum of American Art, Cotuit

Wednesday, November 13

2:00 pm Cape Cod Art Center, Barnstable

Thursday, November 14

9:30 am Cultural Center of Cape Cod, South Yarmouth

Noon Old Firehouse Gallery, Orleans

2:00 pm Harwich Community Center Room 4, Harwich

Friday, November 15

10 am Wellfleet Preservation Hall, Wellfleet

1:00 pm Provincetown Commons, Provincetown

Sue Dahling Sullivan, a Mashpee resident who is the ArtWeek Lead Champion and Chief Strategic Officer of the Boch Center who produces the festival as its nonprofit community program, will lead the sessions. The meetings are also being coordinated with local arts organizations, cultural districts, and chambers of commerce.

In addition to the Highland Street Foundation and the Boch Center, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Mass Cultural Council and Massachusetts Office of Travel and Tourism are the festival's Lead Champions in a collaborative effort that celebrates "Arts for All" and the power of creative communities. ArtWeek events truly span creative genres and range from events at museums and landmarks, to music and open studios, to arts walks and community festivals, and everything in between. There will be events focused on dance, education, film, public art, and theater, as well as hundreds of family-friendly events. ArtWeek offers affordable – and often free – events and makes all forms of creativity affordable and accessible for anyone who lives, works, plays, and visits Massachusetts.

Light Up the Night, Art of Food, and #DestinationArtWeek will also return as a special part of the May 2020 festivities. Light Up the Night is a special nighttime salute to arts, cultural, and creative communities where iconic buildings and structures light up during ArtWeek on different nights in multicolored splendor. Art of Food is a special program where restaurants create a special cocktail or menu item inspired by art, and #DestinationArtWeek includes special offerings from various hotels and inns that encourages travelers from near and far to explore the festival throughout the state.

ArtWeek events span the Commonwealth's six regions: Cape Cod & Islands, Greater Boston, North of Boston, South of Boston, Central Massachusetts and Western Massachusetts. Last year over 130 state, regional, and local partners as well as 28 local media sponsors supported the festival in a collective effort to celebrate creativity across the state.
